THIRD VICTORY AT DETROIT

Indianapolis Ball-Players Administer a Third Drubbing to the Champions.

Shreve Proves a Puzzle to the Big Batters, and They Score but One Run-Boyle Said to Be Indulging in a Fit of the Sulks.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

DETROIT, Aug. I .- Indianapolis had a walkover with the champions to-day. The latter played like school-boys, while the visitors were sharp in the field and bunched hits when needed. Shreve was a regular puzzler to the home team, as the record of hits made off him will show. Detroit made its only run in the first. Hanlon got to first on a single, and to second on Brouthers's grounder to Esterbrook; Rowe made a hit to center and Hanlon scored; White drove a grounder at Glasscock, and Rowe was forced out at second: Ganzel flew out to McGeachy. For the other eight innings only one hit was made off Shreve, and that was a scratch by Gruber. Glasscock was the first man to solve Gruber's delivery, and he put a single to right and stole second; he went to third on Bassett's out at first, and scored on a passed ball. Esterbrook went out from Rowe to Brouthers, and McGeachy sent a fly to Rowe. In the sixth Shreve hit to center and stole second, Seery flow out to White, but Buckley put a single to center and Shreve scored. Buckley was caught trying to steal second, and Hines tipped out. McGeachy put a beauty to right for a base in the eighth, and got second on Myors's single to left; both were advanced a bag Shreeve's out at first; Seery one at Ganzel, who the ball back to the plate, and McGeachy was out; Buckley made a double to left, and Seery a. Myers scored. Hines hit one to White. and Buckley was caught at third. It is rumored here to-night that Boyle is sulky, and that he refused to pitch to-day. His name was on the score-card, and everybody expected to see him box. Denny's finger is doing well, and he expects to take his place again in a few days.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.-The New York and Washington clubs played a slow but close and exciting game, at the Polo grounds, to-day. Keefe seemed tired in the last two innings, and did not pitch with his usual skill. Widner pitched fairly, although the local players earned four of the five rune scored. The playing was too slow to make the game thoroughly enjoy-Ward and Whitney did good work in the field. Daniels was even more tiresome than

PITTSBURG, 6; CHICAGO, 4. CHICAGO, Aug. 1 .- Errors by Burns and Baldwin gave Pittsburg to-day's game in the twelfth. Aside from the two home-runs of Sullivan and Duffy, Galvin was not hit hard. Most of Pittsburg's hits were short and feeble, but they got the men to bases. Baldwin pitched a strong game, striking eleven men out, but he was wretchedly supported. The feature of the Pittsburgs' game was Beckley's playing on first base. He put out twenty four mer. The attendance was 4,500. Score:

Game at Wabash. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

WABASH, Aug. 1 .- There was a large audience at the ball park to-day to witness the game with the Elkhart League club. The batting of the two clubs was about eyen, but by a series of unfortunate errors at critical times on the part of the Wabash club the game was lost. J. W. C., Yorktown: If a batted ball strikes on tair ground between home plate and first base, and then bounding, is caught by the catcher standing on foul ground, it is a foul.

Vice versa, it would be fair. The score of the game between the Anderson Tuesday was incorrectly stated, it is claimed. It stood 2 to 2 in the ninth inning, and upon the refusal of the Anderson club to continue the game the umpire, J. E. Stephenson, declared the game in favor of the Pendletons on a score of 9 to 0. The dispute arose over the legitimacy of some scoring.

Trotting and Pacing at Cleveland. CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 1 .- The attendance at the races to-day was much better than that of yesterday. Notwithstanding the heavy rain-fall of last might the track was in splendid condition. a bright sun during the forenoon having served to dry it. Not Claiming Everything in New York.

New York Special. The Democrats of this State are not claiming everything, as they did a month ago. A marked change is observable in the air of easy confidence which they have hitherto assumed, and they are beginning to realize that the disaffection caused by their free-trade platform grows more serious every day. The complications brought about by the effort to kill off Governor Hill are also a cause of anxiety. An indication of the extent of the uprising within the party against the Cleveland policy is to be found in the fact that a Democratic reporter rode eighty miles on horseback through the Hudson river counties, questioning the farmers whom he met on their attitude toward both tickets. He confesses, as a result of his tour, that Cleveland is weaker than his party among the farmers, and that the rural districts are solidly against free trade.

Prospects in Virginia.

It is said that Gen. Mahone really believes that the State can be carried for the Republicans, provided local differences, particularly in this district, can be adjusted. He has assured the national leaders of the State that there is such a sentiment favorable to protection in Virginia that there is more than a fighting chance for the Republicans to win. He realizes, however, that there must be harmony and united action, and is more willing than ever before to Barney Clay..... 7 3 1 2 Charley M...... 8 6 7 4 accept any overtures that may be offered. The Senate Declines to Invest $10.000,000 in a Hunt for Confederate Property. WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 .- Mr. Plumb, from the committee on agriculture, reported back the House bill to enlarge the powers and duties of the Department of Agriculture and to create an executive department to be known as the Department of Agriculture. He said the bill was in the same shape as when last reported and recommitted, and that he would call it up for action at a very early day. In the bill, as reported, the provisions of the House bill for the transfer of the Weather Bureau from the War Department to the Department of Agriculture are struck out.

The House bill to subdivide the Eastern judicial district of Louisiana and to fix the times and places for holding terms of court therein, was then considered and passed.

Mr. Evarts, from the committee on foreign relations, reported back the Secate joint resolution authorizing and empowering the President of the United States to take such measures as, in his judgment, may be necessary to obtain indemnity, promptly, for the injuries, losses and damages suffered by the Venezuelan Steamship Company, of New York, by reason of the wrongful seizure and detention of the company's three steamers in 1871, and to employ such means, or exercise such powers as may be necessary. Placed on the calendar. The following bills were taken up and passed: House bill to authorize the Winona & Southwestern Railway Company to build a bridge across the Mississippi at Winona, Minn.; the House bill for improving the month of the Brazos river, Texas; the House bill to protect purchasers of lands lying in the vicinity of Denver, Col., heretofore withdrawn by the executive department of the government as lying within the limits of certain railroad grants, and afterward held to lie without such limits; the House bill for a public building at Jackson, Mich, with an amendment increasing the appropriation from $50,000 to $75,000; the House bill to authorize the Kentucky Rock-gas Company to lay conduit pipes across the Onio and Salt rivers; the Senate bill appropriating $125,000 for a public building at Wilkesbarre, Pa.; the House bill to provide for the disposal of the Fort Wallace military reservation in Kansas; the House bill to extend for five years from June, 1887, the provisions of an act to provide for the muster and pay of certain officers and enlisted men of the volunteer force; the Senate bill to grant the city of Chadron, Neb., the right to lay pipe lines across certain tracts of land.

All these bills having been taken up and acted upon, under unanimous consent, Mr. Beck gave notice that hereafter he would object to bills being taken up in that way if the Senate would not proceed to the regular call of the calendar. He wished to go to the calendar regularly in order to give every bill its chance.

The Senate resumed consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill, the pending question being on the amendment offered yesterday by Mr. Call appropriating $10,000,000 for the re-covery of property of the late Confederate States, now held in adverse possession to the

After a speech by Mr. Call in support of the amendment, Mr. Edmunds said that he had been a member of a committee a few years ago which had investigated that whole subject, and he was satisfied that the appropriation would be a useless waste of money, and that the wisest thing to be done with the assets of the late Confederacy, as with the late unpleasantness itself, was to forget all about them and let them go.
The ships referred to might be located, perhaps, just as, in old fox-hunting times, a fox might be located in a narrow cave in a mountain, but the question was how to get him out. Every cent spent in the matter would be lost,

Mr. Call said he did not know how much money had been paid to suppress information, or what officials had been corrupted to betray the honor and interest of the United States; but he did know that it was the imperative duty of every Senator to see that the property of the United States was recovered; and the Senator from Vermont could not evade that

Mr. Gibson opposed the amendment. He submitted that it was not proper, at this late hour, to call in question the validity or integrity of the surrender that was made by the officers of the confederate forces on land or sea. The Confederate States had died a noble death on the field of battle, many years ago, all that survived being that sentiment of honor which had beaten high in the hearts of the men who represented that fallen power. For one, he would have engraved on its tombstone the epitaph on Shakespeare's:

"Good friend, for Jesus' sake, forbear To touch the dust enclosed here. Blessed be he who spares these bones, And cursed he who moves these stones.'

Mr. Reagan denied the accuracy of one of the statements submitted as to the existence of confederate property in Marion and Davis counties, Texas; and said that, taking as an example, there was no credit to be given to statements so recklessly made. He suggested that "Mulberry Sellers" should retire from the stage and yield his place to the author of those state-

Mr. Call replied to many of the arguments made against his amendment and referring to the remarks of Mr. Gibson, said that he did not sympathize with that Senator in the opinion that the dust of the Confederacy should be buried, and that its good friends should let it alone. The Confederate States would live in history for the great and heroic characters which they had developed. There was no need to leave their dust undisturbed. Their fame was written in the immortal pages of history by such illustrious characters as Lee and Jackson, and he was glad to note that the loyal heart of the North and of its soldiers responded to that sentiment. He was not ashamed of the Confederacy, and did not want its dust to remain undisturbed. It could not be shut down or overlooked. The Confederacy had no dust, but noble self-sacrifice.

it had the immortal glory of heroic character, of Mr. Allison moved to lay Mr. Call's resolution on the table, and the motion was agreed to without division.

The bill was then reported back to the Senate and all the amendments concurred in, except that appropriating $50,000 for the widow of Professor Baird, on which Mr. Reagan demanded the yeas and nays. The amendment was concurred in-yeas, 28; nays, 11. Mr. Sherman explained that he had not voted on the amendment because he thought the appropriation too large. He would have been willing to vote for an appropriation of $25,000, and he suggested that the amount would be reduced by the conference committee. The bill was then

Mr. Plumb inquired of Mr. Allison as to the length of time which it would probably require, in view of the necessary delays of a conference, for the sundry civil bill to become a law. He said that he made the inquiry with the object of learning the probable length of the session. Mr. Allison stated, in response to Mr. Plumb, that there now remained undisposed of five of the regular appropriation bills-the army bill, the navy bill, the sundry civil oill, the general deficiency bill and the fortifications bill. He thought it might be safely assumed that all the appropriation bills could be disposed of next week. He did not expect to present any appropriation bills to-morrow or next day. The Senate had passed joint resolution last Saturday extending all the appropriations till the 31st of August. As to the tariff bill it was not possible for him to say when it would be presented to the Senate; but he could only say that, so far as he was concerned, and so far as he had heard, it was the intention of the committee on finance to bring

A Spat Between Reed and Butterworth. WASHINGTON, Aug. 1. - After disposing of unimportant routine business on the Speaker's table, the House went into committee of the whole, Mr. Springer, of Illinois, in the chair, on the Senate amendments to the Army appropriation bill, the pending motion being that made by Mr. Townshend, of Illinois, to non-concur in the amendment appriating $2,500 for repairs to the sea-wall and wharf at Willet's Point, N. Y.

Mr. Burnes, of Missouri, addressed himself to the policy which the House should follow in acting upon Senate amendments, which, if offered in the House, would be out of order. He desired to lift the House from its knees before the Sanhedrim and place it on its feet as to its rights. Mr. Burns then proceeded to oppose the establishment of a gun factory at Waterville arsenal. Mr. Hooper, of Mississippi, could see in the amendments no disposition on the part of the Senate to infringe on the powers of the House. The purpose of the opposition to the Senate amendments seemed to be to obstruct any legislation on the subject of the public defense because it would not be possible to pass the fortifications bill at the present session. Mr. Butterworth did not insist that the Senate desired to disregard the right of the House. but thought it acted under the apprehension that a fortifications bill would not be reported, and deemed it wise to provide for the public defence in the army bill. But the fortifications bili had been reported, and the necessity for the amendments did not exist, He then advocated the fortifications bill, as reported from the committee on appropriations, as against the plan provided in the Senate amendment, in that the former invited competition in the building of guns and provided for a board to pass upon their merits. In doing so he had one or two heated colloquies with Mr. Reed, of Maine, which were much relished by the Democratic side. On one occasion, when Mr. Reed, in an interruption, said he was able to meet any emergency, he was himself interrupted by Mr. Butterworth with the sarcastic remark that in the estimation of his friends it was never safe to

Mr. Reed indignantly said that his friend had accused him of too much pride. He had cut him off in the middle of a sentence and made it appear that he had given utterance to idle boast. He [Mr. Reed] had said that he was equal to any emergency. He had meant that he was equal to any emergency which he voluntarily affronted himself to. Again Mr. Butterworth broke in with the declaration that he never knew the emergency which the gentleman would not affront and affront himself, too. Mr. Reed retorted that he would be able to meet any emergency raised by the gentleman.

"Fools rush in where angels fear to tread," quoted Mr. Butterworth in retort. Mr. Reed attempted to reply, but Mr. Butterworth declined to yield, and upon Mr. Reed's persisting, suggested that if the gentleman would have the politeness to ask him to yield when he wanted to rush in, he would build himself up in the estimation of his friends. Mr. Rogers, of Arkansas, protested against the action of the Senate, and would protest against it in every parliamentary way, if he had to stay there until the 4th of March. Mr. Laird, of Nebraska, spoke in support of the Senate amendments as the only way of securing the protection which the country needed. It left to the committee on appropriations, no action would be taken until the 146th

Congress. Mr. Bayne, of Pennsylvania, said that he would support the Senate amendments, though with some reluctance, because he thought that the Alleghany arsenal should have been selected as a site for the gun-factory, instead of the Watervleit arsenal.

The pending amendment was then non-concurred in, without division, as were also the amendments appropriating $1,000 for repairs to the works on Old Fort Barraneas, Pensacola bay, Fia., and appropriating $600,000 for the manufacture or purchase of cannon and car-

Mr. Bayne moved to substitute Allegheny arsenal for Watervleit arsenal, as the site of the proposed gun-factory. Rejected. Mr. Townshend moved to non-concur in the amendment providing for the establishment of the gun-factory and for the purchase of steel. Agreed to, and the committee rose and reported its action to the House.

The recommendation of the committee as to the minor amendments was carried out and the amendments were con-concurred in. Mr. Sayres, of Texas, offered a resolution declaring that the House will insist upon its disagreement to Senate amendments Nos. 26, 27, 33 and 35 (relating to fortifications and ordnance) and that the House request a conference thereon; and further declaring that it is the judgment of the House that the managers on the part of the House should insist on a disagreement and should not consent that the appropriations for fortifications should be placed on the army bill, as that subject has been referred to the committee on appropriations, and all such appropriations should be placed on the tortifications bill. Mr. Townshend raised a point of order against the resolution, and pending a decision, the House adjourned.

The Jute Combination.

Sr. Louis, Aug. 1 .- it now seems that the jute combination has secured sufficient control of the output of bagging manufactories to control the market. It is claimed that Warren. Jones & Gratz are at the head of the trust, and they decline to deny or affirm the statement. Toey own the Southern and Standard mills, of St Louis, and a mill at Muncie, Ind. Several of the largest Eastern mills are in the combine, the most prominent being L. Waterbury & Co. and Nevins & Co., of Boston. The mills shut down are at St Louis, Peru, Ind.; the Crescent Jute Company, New Orleans; W. J. Tappe & Co., Louisville; Hart Bagging Company, Brooklyn, N. Y., and a number of small mills in Illinois and Indiana. The output of all American mills is 50,000,000 yards of bagging, sufficient to cover a crop of 7,000,000 bales of cotton. The present crop is expected to exceed 7,000,000 bales. and the demand for bagging will be brisk. The Ludlow Bagging Company, of Boston, is the only concern of any magnitude running independently, and its output is but 6,000,000 yards. nearly all of which has already been placed at about 7 cents. The price fixed by the combination is 112 cents, or an additional clear profit of 42 cents per yard. There is no scarcity of raw material to justify the increase, but the cottonproducing section seems to be at the mercy of the combination.

Sequel to a Double Murder. CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—A sad sequel was added to-day to the murder of the two base-ball players, John Phillips and "Skip" Larkins, Sunday, by Aug. Detlauf, whom the pair attempted to deprive of a can of beer. Mrs. Phillips was completely prostrated when the news of her husband's death was broken to her, and has continued to grow worse. She insisted upon attending the double funeral yesterday, although scarcely able to leave her bed. Just after the casket had been lowered into the grave she became wildly hysterical, and threw herself violently into the excavation, declaring she would be buried with her husband. She was with difficulty removed from the scene by her friends. and taken to her home. It was then discovered that her mind had succumbed to the strain on her nervous system. A physician was summoned, and she was quieted with morphia. This morning she was no better, and it was determined to send her to the detention hospital. for the insane. It is said that she has not tasted food since her husband's death, and her physician fears that she will die of inanition, as she positively refuses nourishment.

Desperadoes Run to Earth. BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 1 .- A telegraph operator at Brockton, who arrived here last night, gave meagre details of a bloody tragedy in Bibb county. For some time a gang of moonshiners have been operating around the coal mines and railroad camps in that neighborhood. They became so bold that they defied arrest, and the last deputy United States marshal who visited that section was run out and ordered never to return. Last Sunday the gang waylaid and murdered a prominent citizen of the county for his money. This aroused such excitement that a posse was organized to hunt the outlaws They were soon found, and after an exchange of shots the moonshiners took refuge in an old drift of the Brierfield coal mines. The posse of citizens determined to starve them to death if they would not come out and surrender. Monday night one of the moonshiners made a bold dash for liberty, but was shot at by the posse and fell dead. The rest of the gang are still in the mines and the posse standing guard.

Man and Diamonds Missing.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1 .- Several down-town importers of and dealers in precious stones would like to have information of the whereabouts of A. G. Radcliffe, a well-known mounter of glaziers' diamonds. He has vanished from his accustomed haunts, and with him have gone diamonds valued at $30,000. It is surmised that he has gone to England. Radcliffe got most of the diamonds from the importers for the purose of making selections, but he evidently seected all, as none have been returned and be has departed. He also obtained a few stones by the use of checks which have proved worthless.

Defended Himself with a Pocket-Knife. PITTSBORO, Miss., Aug. I .- A battle took place yesterday between Robert Reagan, on one side and F. N. Enochs, James Enochs and Charles Cochran on the other. The men had a dispute over a business matter and Reagan was assaulted by the other three. He retired into a bisersmith shop, followed by his assailants, and finite ing the back door locked, he drew his pocket knife and used it with such effect that in less than five minutes Cochran lay dead on the ground and the Enoch brothers were mortally burt. Reagan received a blow with a bar that broke three of his ribs.
